

Ocean's Tale

Life is short, just a frame – a blink of an eye
Be aware you are just a snapshot of time
Long-gone souls they watch you try, they see you fail
They wait for you to step into the ocean's tale

When my time has come to bid farewell
I will find the way to the place you dwell
Those I lost, those I loved
I will follow them into the ocean's tale

Death is near, close to you, he never sleeps
Don't you try gath'ring things you never can keep You're not what you think you are, you're a snapshot of time
You will join the ocean's tale

So, when time has come to bid farewell
I will find the way to the place you dwell
Those I lost, the ones I loved
I will follow them into the ocean's tale

Memories rolling by
The frames displayed inside of me
Now, only Silence is here
As I am diving into the past...

Slowly, I'm closing my eyes
To seek you out on the other side
Voices, yet far away
They sound familiar to me

Do I go astray? Just call my name! Show me how to find you in the dark
But those voices fade, the choice was made, I return to stay a little while

When my time has come to bid farewell
I will find the way to the place you dwell
Those I lost, those I loved
I will follow them into the ocean's tale